PRE-REGISTRATION CELEBRATION.

A special program filled with patriotism was carried out at the Memorial Chapel of Fisk University Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock under the advice of the Council of National Defense for colored men who are to register today. Hon. J. C. Napier, who presided over the meeting, advised members of the race to make any sacrifice to render service for the cause of democracy. After the reading of the message of the President of the United States on the new registration he continued:

"I visited recently camps where colored boys were in training, and I heard them remark, 'We are pleased with army life and are contented and happy. You may tell the people at home we wouldn't come back if we could.'"

Prof. Fisher who was the principal speaker, in his usual way interested his hearers to the eligible registrants he said in part: "I am here because I am a good soldier and am obeying orders. The Government wants to know where there is a man who is capable of contributing to the success of the war. After this registration it will be possible for the hand of our Government to be placed on us when needed."

"I am personally ready and willing to render any service I can, anywhere I can. We want to go in large numbers that our Allies may know we have great resources. We want to get through with it. We will pledge every cent we have, every ounce of blood we've got to get through with this great world war. It is not that I know your response to this call. I know that you will do your duty just as you have always done it, and in after years it will be said of you, 'There is a group of people who when their Government needed them, they did not fail. Let us all answer the call and say to our Government, 'I am here to go where you want me to go, to do what you want me to do.'"

Rev. W. S. Ellington spoke of an only son whom he would willingly sacrifice to the cause, and said in this great conflict we must give all that we have, and give it cheerfully and patriotically, and he must sincerely invoke the blessings of God on many who may be called from this number."

W. N. Sanders, secretary of the colored Y. M. C. A. was introduced and made a very encouraging talk citing statistics to show that the death rate was not so great and the number of men who would return would not be small. He further stated that it is a compliment for Uncle Sam to lay a hand on a man and say, "I need you to fight for me."

Rev. J. H. Grant spoke of the splendid opportunity the Negro has at this National Baptist Publishing House of eple of right. At the beginning of the program Dr. R. H. Boyd of this city invoked the blessings of God on all efforts of those in authority and the country, including soldiers and those who are backing them here in these critical times.
